Profile

Oisín has been a practicing environmental professional since graduating with his MSc in 1998. Having spent several years working with some of the better known environmental consultant firms and a term at Environment and Heritage Service he went onto establish his own practice, OC Environmental Ltd.

He continues to provide organisations with the necessary skills and support to address their environmental obligations, manage risk and reduce liabilities. He has extensive knowledge of environmental issues affecting a wide variety of organisations and through experience, has developed particular expertise in the aerospace, construction, aggregates, electricity, railway & public sectors.

Experience Overview

Oisín provides organisations with environmental expertise on a daily basis, whether it be assessing environmental constraints of a site for an architect or developer, implementing management systems or developing and delivering training.

He has proven track record of leading EIA and Management Systems teams. As a project manager he has coordinated multi-disciplinary teams and external contractors on projects throughout Ireland and the UK. Oisín also worked as a Policy Advisor at Environment & Heritage Service (now NIEA). Having been employed in both the public and private spheres, gave him a valuable understanding of legislative constraints and their application in practice. He continues to provide clients with guidance on environmental legislation and evaluating compliance.

He is an AIEMA registered Environmental and EMS Auditor with extensive Management System experience comprising: Integrated Management Systems (IMS): Quality, Environmental and Safety Management Systems (ISO9001 / ISO14001 / OHAS18001 & Safe T Cert). Over the past ten years he has implemented and maintained Management Systems for a wide portfolio of clients, including local authorities and some of the country's major construction and manufacturing companies.

Oisín is an accomplished trainer and regularly develops and delivers tailored training programmes on various environmental or safety related topics. He has developed CIWEM accredited training programmes on environmental management and delivered to over 100 organisations. He has delivered training for the Construction Employers Federation (CEF) and University of Ulster on management systems, waste management and environmental compliance.

In recent times he has been contracted by the Government's Envirowise programme, managing programmes providing businesses with support in implementing waste minimisation and resource efficiency measures.
